THE announcement contained in our local column that the beef supply of the colony practically suspended on Tuesday by the strike of the retail dealers against the new regulations, has been restored is, we venture to think, not one which will be received with unmixed satisfaction by the community, considering the conditions under which the butchers' strike is ended. The supply has been restored by nothing less than a complete surrender to the butchers, or rather the retailers of the meat, who have now returned to their old objectionable practices. There is reason to hope that the surrender is only temporary, but still even a small measure of success to the Chinese in a matter of that kind is not a thing to be desired. The public has been already informed of the cause of the strike among the meat stall holders, viz. the provision of a banging shed for the bee killed at the slaughter house, to be used for the storage of the meat until it is removed to the market for sale, and prohibition of the dealers from taking it to their homes in the interim. This provision was brought about by some disclosures as to the most objectionable places in which the beef was usually kept the night after slaughter. It was taken home to the dwelling-houses of the dealers and their employés, and hung in those crowded and foul smelling domiciles, sometimes with disease around it. In one case the Colonial Surgeon visited a house where there were persons suffering from small-pox, and found quarters of beet intended for the market demand the next day hanging above the sick persons. The meat was of course destroyed, but who facts accomplished, the rapid extension of can say in how many cases such things have occurred and never been discovered?

accommodation of different departments, were confined to a few, and those flatly refused to supply most under the order, the obnuxious regulation. As everyone knows, secret of the enormous increase observed there was no beef to be had on Tuesday, and reasonable dictation. It was therefore a matter of surprise yesterday to find that the restoration of the supply was due to a caving deputation of the butchers waited upon the Acting Registrar-General, Mr. J. H.
